Subject: Dam Safety Review

Ron,
I have reviewed the AMEC Draft Report. It is well done, and their recommendations are quite consistent with what I expected.

We have previously considered all of their recommended items and I suggest the easiest course of action is to include a formal discussion as a section in our 2006 Construction Report. I am not sure we need to do a separate Annual Inspection Report this year and may just roll it all into the Construction report if that is OK with you. (Conversely, we can issue a separate letter report responding to the findings of the DSR if that makes more sense.)

You may want to follow up with AMEC on whether any of their recommendations would be adjusted if the Dam Safety Classification is reduced as per their suggestion. For example, do their recommendations for an additional formal Dam Safety Review still stand if a LOW consequence classification is adopted?
